How Our 10 Year Bulb Life is Possible?

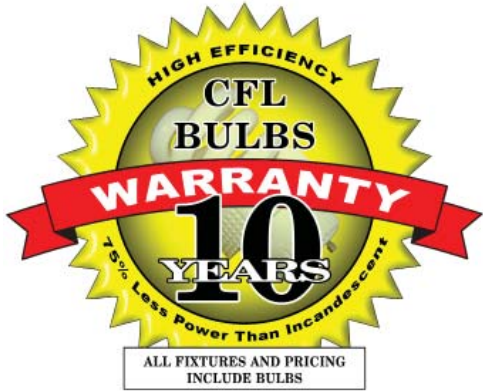

Green Lighting Eco Products produce some of the most efficient light fixtures in the world!

- ▶ Each fixture is engineered to ensure the correct bulb and airflow is used to maximize life.
- ▶ Each bulb or fixture has built in surge suppression. (Helps eliminate bulb burnout from electrical problems)
- ▶ Each piece of glass is engineered to ensure heat is allowed to escape to maintain safer cooler fixtures.
- ▶ All metal composites on fixtures are designed to minimize heat retention thus allowing cooler temperatures and longer more efficient bulb life.
- ▶ Each bulb uses a 3000K color base for optimum comfort and lighting. (13 watt bulb produces 900 lumens at 3000K color)
- ▶ Each fixture is heat tested to ensure the fixture remains under 35°C and the bulbs remain at under 90°C at all times, even if on consistently. (Heat greatly reduces a bulbs life)
 - * Green Lighting Eco Products Flushmount fixtures run at less than 59°C at their hottest spot *

* Some conditions apply* Further details available at www.GreenLightingEcoProducts.com

* Warranty does not apply to commercial, industrial, continuous use condominium common area bulbs, or private generator supplied power

ENERGY STAR Term

ENERGY STAR Qualified Screw-Based Compact Fluorescent Lamp (CFL)

ENERGY STAR Qualified Residential Light Fixture (RLF)

Definition

A qualified CFL is the energy-efficient alternative to the traditional incandescent light bulb. CFLs have a medium screw base and are designed to use in most residential fixtures.

Any fixture, either indoor or outdoor, that would be appropriate for use in a residence. All fixtures have an energy efficient light source that typically consists of a lamp and ballast combination. Fixtures can either be portable or hardwired.

Base

Medium Screw Base

Pin base or GU-24

Ideal market

Ideal for replacing incandescent lamps in existing fixtures. Typically sold through retail channels.

Ideal for the new construction market. Typically sold through showroom, distributor and homebuilder channels.

Design

Since CFLs are used in existing fixtures typically designed for incandescent light bulbs, the fixtures may not be properly designed to be used with CFLs. There could be visible "hot spots" of light and other performance problems when using a CFL in an incandescent fixture.

As the fixtures are designed for a dedicated compact fluorescent lamp source, the fixtures are thermally tested with the lamp included to ensure there are no performance issues or hot spots.

Performance

Can run at high temperature (due to incorrect fixture design) reducing bulb life up to 80%. Short bulb life (1000 - 2000 hrs) takes away efficiency.

Heat tested at every point along the bulb to ensure cool running, high efficiency, longest lasting.

Aesthetics

As CFLs will typically be placed into a fixture that was not designed for a CFL, the lamp could possibly stick out of the fixture creating an unpleasant aesthetic look. Also, the proper color of lamp may not be selected by the customer to compliment the fixture's glass color or design.

As most ENERGY STAR fixtures require the inclusion of a lamp, the fixture is designed by the manufacturer to have the proper size and color lamp to provide quality aesthetics. Additionally, glass is typically designed to conceal the lamp.

Type of Savings

Long term savings are not guaranteed because the base is potentially regressive. An incandescent lamp that has low efficiency can always be placed into the fixture at a later time.

Savings are permanent because the fixture contains a dedicated high-efficiency socket. This important to energy providers, and ensures the fixture will always be used with efficient sources.

Lamp Life

ENERGY STAR qualified CFLs are required to have a minimum lamp life of 6,000 hours when placed in an open air fixture.

Lamps included in ENERGY STAR qualified fixtures are required to have a minimum life of 10,000 hours. Fixtures have been designed for maximum bulb life.
